Kiwanis of Uptown Augusta

Volume XXIX, Issue 41

October 27th 2009

This week we welcomed our favorite local Historian Tom Sutherland who spoke on Barry Benson

The man at the top of the Confederate Monument on Broad Street in Augusta is Barry Benson, who was captured as a POW, escaped Federal custody, returned home, and never surrendered his rifle at war's end. He spent his life after the war as an accountant and is buried in Sunset Hills Cemetery.

"This book showers well-deserved attention on one of the South's truly noble sons. Benson, who served his homeland from Charleston to Appomattox, won even greater glory late in life when he championed the innocence of Jewish factory boss Leo M. Frank, convicted of murder in 1913 in Atlanta and subsequently lynched. Benson was a terrific character and this volume does him justice."--Steve Oney, author of And the Dead Shall Rise
